JUDGE LAMB'S APPOINTMENT As Receiver of Harrison's Bank Declared Illegal and Void. A decision of some importance to the creditors of Harrison's Bank was rendered yesterday in the Supreme Court, and the probabilities are that those who have obtained judgment for their deposits will now stand in the light of preferred creditors, and be paid before the sureties on Mr. Harrison's bond. The question grew out of the appointment of Judge R. N. Lamb as receiver of the bank. Soon after his appointment, Mr. J. T. Pressly, a depositor, took judgment against the bank for $9,929.12, and filed a complaint asking for ants then in the hands of the receiver, and alleging that his appointment was void because appointed in vacation. A demurrer was filed and sustained, and Mr. Pressly carried the point of law to the supreme Court. The decision yesterday remanded the case back to the lower court with instructions to overrule the demurrer, holding that a court could not sphoint a Receiver during vacation in a case in which the action had not been begun, and that the filing of a petition for a receiver by Alfred Harrison against John C. S. Harrison and the fact that the latter came into court and acknowledged the fac's set

John C. S. Harrison and the fact that the latter came into court and acknowledged the fac's set forth did not constitute an action. Judge Mitch all rendered the opinion, all the other Judges concurring except Judge Elliott, who was not in the case at all. The effect of this decision would seem to lay the property of the Harrisons open to an exceution whether it has parsed from the hands of the receiver or not, and as some of it certainly has been disposed of there is little question but it is subject still to the judgments rendered in favor of Mr. Pressly and others who brought suit. If the appointment of Judge Lamb was illegal and void, his ac's under the appointment would appear void also, and if this is really the case, the judgment creditors would have to be satisfied first out of the property belanging to the Harrisons at the time of their failure. Judge Lamb does not appear to be fully satisfied with regard to the effects of the decision, and when questioned on this point said: "I haven't given the case any close attention, be cause I did not anticipate such a decision, and consequently not prepared to say exactly what its effects will be. It was taken to the Supreme Court on demurrer and not in the complaint direct, and now as the demurrer is overruled I suppose the facts alleged in the complaint will have to be established. If my appointment was illegal. I have been the receiver in fact, and i supposible that the capacity will not be overthrown. Judge Hill said to me a few days ago, regarding this case, that if it was reversed in the Supreme Court, it was his opinion that that did not settle the matter, but that the issues would have to be made up and tried on the original complaint in the usual way." Concerning the various judgments taken by Pressly and others, and whether they will be way." Concerning the various judgments taken by Pressly and others, and whether they will be preferred over general creditors. Judge Lamb said:

"I am not prepared to say exactly what effect it will have, only I should not be surprised if execution on the property could be taken on the property, even if some of it had been sold by me under this ruling. I don't say that this will be the case, because I have not looked up the points involved. If it should prove to be however, these underments will consume all the estate, from which

John T. Woodard Found Guilty of Embezzlement and Given Five Years by the Jury-The History of the Case. Yesterday was the second day of the trial of John

FOR FIVE YEARS.

f. Woodard in the Criminal Court for embezzlement. The argument was concluded at 3 o'clock, when Judge Norton instructed the jury, and it retired for deliberation. In less than an hour and a bulf a verdict of guilty was rendered, and the punishment fixed at five years in the State Prison. An appeal will be taken if a motion for a new trial is over-ruled. Woodard was allowed to go home and change his clothes, after which he was taken to Woodard has been figuring in the courts in con-nection with the lottery prosecution for a good many months. Informations were filed against him a number of times under the State law against lotteries and lottery agencies, but he managed to evade punishment each time. Last fall he sold a ticket in the Louisiana Lottery to Jeremiah Miller, a man ared about finy-five years, which drew a prize of $1 100. Miller was apprised of this fact, and went to Woodard. The money came to Woodsrd in the form of a check by express, from Cincinnati, and was placed by him in bank to his own credit. Miller demanded his money and Woodard denied having received anything from woodard denied having received anything from him, stating that it was a mistake, and that the ticket which drew the prize was of a different number. Miller entered complaint and Woodard was arrested, but gave bond. The Grand Jury indicted him for embezzlement, and his bond was renewed. The case was well defended, and Miller, the prosecuting witness, was subjected to a severe cross-examing witness. ination but he stood the test well and never faltered or left a weak point in his evidence. Wood-ard told a story on the witness stand about his going to Cincinnati to see about the money and of discovering that Miller held the wrong ticket when he reached that city. His story, however, was weak in many places, and he contradicted himself several times and was contradicted in part by two men from Cincinnati, who were connected with the lottery. His sentence was severe but no unexpected. Woodard himself was apprehensive from the first, but his friends tried to encourage him. His conviction will not be without its good effects in the community.
